SET YOUR BUDGET/SET YOUR THEME/DO IT TOGETHER

Sit down with your partner and talk through your ideas together, you should be making these decisions together! Men these days want to get involved; after all it's their wedding as well. Ask each other what sort of wedding the other has envisaged, you may both have completely different ideas. Do you want a Church ceremony, a civil ceremony or a Humanist ceremony or a blessing?

Once you have done this then look at your budget, yes I know it may not be the most romantic aspect of planning a wedding but it pays to be realistic about your expectations and also it will help with the whole planning process. Talk about what you can afford, what you have saved and how much you can put away each month. The amount of time you need to save may also have a reflection on your wedding date. Also it's a good idea to find out if family members are going to be contributing, and if so how much? Don't presume, it's always good to know at the beginning stages.

Once this is done you can look at the mood of the day and ideas on how you want it to feel/look. Do you have any sort of theme, have you seen anything you like the look of, do you have your own ideas how to make the day special to you?

PRIORITISE THE IMPORTANT THINGS

Discuss with your fiancé what is important to each of you. For one a photographer may be the most important thing to get organised, the other it may be the entertainment, but you may not be too bothered about the car. This way you know where you need to spend your money and where you can save it. By doing this now you won't make any mistakes further down the line, by not allotting each supplier enough time, money or attention.

GET ORGANISED

Get a folder together containing divider cards and plastic envelopes. Make a section for each thing you can think of; venue, photographer, entertainment, cuttings from magazines, etc this way nothing will get lost. Here you can keep all contacts, contracts, emails and quotes in one place.

It's also a good idea to put together a spreadsheet with all the details on it; a to do list, guest list, budget planner etc. Keeping everything in one place will help later on in the planning process and make your life a lot easier.

KEEP A CHECK LIST

Once you have an idea of what needs to be done don't over stress yourself by trying to do everything at once. List each job to be done and then break down how many months you have to do it all before the wedding, then allot each month a list of jobs. Keep this list in your wedding folder and tick off each job as it is done.

SET A DATE AND YOUR GUEST LIST

Decide what part of the year you both want to get married and check with important family members before you book anything. Be ready to be flexible if you can and have a few dates in mind as many venues may not be available if you only have one date in mind.

Once you have this, draw up a very rough guest count so you have some idea what sort of numbers you have, remember the more guests you have the more expensive the wedding will be, so choose wisely!

DO YOUR RESEARCH

This may be time-consuming but don't take the first option given to you, or make hasty decisions. Each supplier needs researching, what was good for one person may not be good for you! By spending time looking at all of your options you will not only save your self-money but create a more personal wedding with your own style.

FIND YOUR VENUE

Finding your venue could very well be the hardest part of the planning process, as it will be the biggest decision you make and set the whole tone for your day. But once you have you will find a lot of things fall into place.

Lots of popular places get booked up quickly, especially if you are looking for a Saturday venue. If you are looking for a Friday, Sunday or mid-week then there may be more availability and flexibility, however Fridays are becoming nearly as popular as Saturdays these days. Try and think outside the box if you are looking for something a bit different. There are so many places that hold wedding licences these days, cinemas, old swimming pools, warehouses, pubs and bars, you aren't just limited to the old stately home or church and don't forget about marquees and tipis. This could be a more flexible option if you are looking to put your own stamp on your wedding day.

BUY WEDDING INSURANCE

The average UK wedding costs between £15,000 and £20,000. Just think about the cost of wedding rings, a wedding dress, catering and the many other wedding essentials and you will soon see how much they add up to. While it is not very romantic to think about what might go wrong with your wedding, it is best to be prepared. Purchasing wedding insurance from the moment you start spending money on your wedding could really help with peace of mind for both your wedding spend, and honeymoon spend alike.

SELECT YOUR WEDDING RINGS

Now you have set a date and purchased wedding insurance you can start to buy all of the accessories that will bring your big day together — including the wedding rings that you'll both wear forever. Some say that the tradition of wedding rings comes from the circular shape symbolising an endless stream of love. Others say the tradition stems from the fact that a vein runs directly from your wedding finger to the heart, connecting the two constantly. Whatever the truth, when selecting your ring you are not just choosing a beautiful piece of jewellery that will look lovely on your finger, you are also taking another step towards bonding yourselves together forever.

PLAN YOUR GUEST LIST

Where do you start with your guest list? The truth is you have probably already thought about it. When you were young did you dream of the fairytale wedding or was yours a smaller, more intimate affair? When you planned your wedding budget presumably you have agreed on the amount you will be spending on your reception venue. As you have selected your venue it's safe to assume that you have a good idea of the size of your wedding party. So now start typing out names — and our advice is really quite simple. Start with the people closest to you, the key players (family members, best man or men, bridesmaids, etc) and then work outwards. Imagine you are designing your 'family and friends tree'.

At this point, do not worry about the actual number of people you have down but think more about not overlooking anyone. Once you are convinced you have everyone included, you can start eliminating people off the list or at least categorising people into daytime and evening guests. Be prepared to give and take a little when discussing people with your partner and try to be as accommodating as possible. That being said, remember that it is your day and if there is somebody there that will really make your day, stand firm!

CHOOSE YOUR DRESS

This is probably the best bit of the whole wedding experience!! To most brides it is so much fun but some brides do find it stressful and put so much pressure on finding 'The' dress! The first thing I would say to do is research! Make sure you do as much research as possible. Look through the magazines; search the internet so you have a good idea what you like before you go. Be ready to try as many style's on as possible and go with an open mind. What you thought you may choose may not be what you finally decide on. Also a lot of the dress shops have a 9 month lead time from choosing the dress to it being delivered to the shop, so you need to make sure you leave yourself enough time.

ORDER WEDDING STATIONERY

Whilst you've probably already told everyone you know about your up and coming marriage, now is the time to make it official. Your wedding invitations should be sent out approximately 3-6 months in advance of your big day, but it's never too early to choose a design or style of stationery that you love. In order to give your guests as much notice as possible, why not send out 'save the date' cards to announce your wedding and ensure that your guests keep that date free, with an 'official invitation to follow' in the near future. Think about purchasing your wedding stationery order from a single supplier in order to save time, and consider ordering personalised wedding stationery directly from hitched.co.uk. The stationery order can include everything from wedding place cards to menus, order of service cards and thank you cards, all created in the same design to match your wedding theme.

THE HONEYMOON

Having dealt with various wedding suppliers, bridesmaid issues, months of stress and trying to make the biggest day of your life perfect you will need a holiday. Your honeymoon is normally your first few weeks alone with your new partner, so it should be truly exciting. If you've not built your honeymoon spend into your main wedding budget then decide between you both how much money you can allocate for your honeymoon, and where you'd like to go. A honeymoon is generally taken within the first few days of being married, but if you want to wait and pro-long your wedding celebration or save extra money then there's no harm in that. Changing your name on the passport is best left until after you return from the holiday, but if you don't own a passport with a least 6 months validity left on it, it would be advisable to get one sooner rather than later. Depending on where you travel to, you may need to check whether or not you require a visa.

CHOOSE YOUR SUPPLIERS AND GET ORGANISED

Once you have your venue, photographer, dress, entertainment and catering the rest of the wedding will begin to take a bit more structure and fall into place.

Get a list together of everything there is to do - invitations, flowers, cake, decorations, outfits, transport etc keep it simple an excel spread sheet may do the trick or maybe you just like good old pen and paper.

Work out when each job needs to be done and spread it all out on a month by month basis. A check list will help you stay focused and also it helps to incorporate the budget which will help you stay on track. Also it's very important to spend time researching each supplier; don't book the first person you find. Where you can, go and meet them, sample what they have to offer, Steve Rowe Magic will do just that - we are more than happy to meet you for a chat before you even make any decisions on the right entertainment. Look at their website, but also check out their blogs and Facebook pages, as with the photographers they may have more up to date work on these.

CHOOSE YOUR PHOTOGRAPHER

You will find that good photographers get booked up a year in advance, so this is one of the first suppliers you need to book. If you have your eye on a certain person you don't want to be disappointed because you haven't got your booking in quick enough. Photography is a very personal thing and there is a huge amount of choice. I would advise you to look at the photographers blogs as well as their website as they tend to put more up to date work on them, also you get to see whole weddings not just the best bits that may be on the websites. Also look at different wedding blogs as this is often a great way to find the style of photographer you may be looking for. Choose your top 2-3 and go and meet them. It's SO important you get on with your photographer because if you don't you won't be comfortable in your pictures and it will show! Your photographer is the one person you will spend the whole day with so it's important you get on.

CHOOSE YOUR ENTERTAINMENT

The next thing that gets booked up quickly is entertainment so get in quickly! The type of entertainment you choose can have a massive impact on the party aspect of the wedding. If you are choosing a band, try and get to hear them play first, ask for recommendations and choose a band that fits in with your taste. Also look at different parts of your day, there are so many different options these days from garden games, village fete games, magicians, photo booths, musicals, singers, circus acts....anything goes! Choose something that fits in with your theme and tone of the day.

CATERING AND DRINK

Catering is another thing that gets booked up way in advance, so something you will need to look at early on in your planning. If you have chosen a venue that doesn't have on sight catering then you will need to look into outside catering companies. Many will be able to provide the drink as well, or you may want to hire in a separate bar company, or run the bar yourself to save some money. You need to think about what sort of food you want and take it from there. Many catering companies will be able to help you with your menu choices, offering up ideas and variations. Remember there are so many options these days, you don't have to go for a 3 course sit down meal, and something more relaxed may be up your street! A BBQ, Hog Roast, afternoon tea, crepe van, ice cream truck, fish and chip van, a buffet! Choose something that fits in with your day and tastes.

YOUR WEDDING GIFT LIST

Whilst you are getting married for love, one nice 'bonus' is all those lovely presents you are going to receive, even better, you get to pick them all out yourself! Most girls love shopping so going in to a store or online and choosing anything you want for your guest list will be amazing and is also a smart idea because it avoids you being given 3 toasters or 9 blenders. A wedding gift list is also good for couples who do already live together and have everything. You can choose unusual presents that you might not purchase yourself or simply select gifts that will resemble your day or the love you have for each other. Wedding gift lists can be arranged at most leading department stores.

CREATE A TABLE PLAN

If you've made use of the 'save the date' cards, most of your guests should be well aware when your wedding is and will be eagerly anticipating the invitation landing on their doormat. You should send out your invites a minimum of 8 weeks before your wedding however sooner is often better. If you are inviting a lot of overseas guests it would be advisable to send them early in order for replies to come back to you. There is nothing more frustrating than not knowing how many people to cater for or where to seat who if you are unsure of your final numbers. One way around this is to have a 'reserve list' of people that you would like to invite if numbers permit. Your table plan will need to be arranged as soon as you have all of your RSVP's back from the guests you invited.

ARRANGE STAG AND HEN NIGHTS

Also known as 'the last night of freedom' the stag or hen party will be a night or weekend celebration with your best friends to celebrate your future wedding. Whether your party be at home, out on the town or abroad, your stag or hen party will be all about you, and will be a celebration to remember forever. Consider adding your stag and hen parties into your initial wedding budget so that you know how much money you have to organise your event with, avoiding the worry of spending lots of unexpected money as the days to your wedding draw closer.

THE FINISHING TOUCHES

Every couple's wedding is unique to them so it is difficult to put into words exactly what final touches you will need to take care of. Things to think about are your wedding breakfast menu, order of service, rehearsals, speeches, readings, poems, thank you gifts, the first dance, wedding music, timings, transport, children, favours, first night accommodation, return of hired outfits, thank you cards, etc.

ENJOY IT!

Don't let the planning consume you, far too often when you plan a wedding it is all you can think about. Try and allot yourself chunks of time to do you're planning. Doing a bits here and there will just end up with you doing it every day. Your time may be better spent by putting a day aside every month to get the jobs done. This way you won't let the wedding run your life.

Don't forget it's your day, you will spend a lot of your time trying to make other people happy, especially your family and guests, but it's your day, don't forget that. Yes you have to be sympathetic to other people's needs and wants, but the two people that have the final say are you two.

And don't forget why you are getting married. Some couple loose site of the actual marriage as they focus so much on the wedding itself, yes it is the best day of your life, but you also have the rest of your lives together, so try and focus on the long term aim!

HIDDEN WEDDING COSTS EVERY COUPLE NEEDS TO KNOW ABOUT

SAY GOODBYE TO SURPRISE INVOICES - YOUR WALLET WILL THANK YOU!

Bridebook.co.uk is home to the most powerful wedding budget planner available – simply enter your wedding budget and in one click you'll have your budget expertly assigned for you, based on exactly what you want to be at your wedding! You can finally say goodbye to spreadsheets and penny pinching. But even the most diligent of betrothed-to-be can be caught off guard by some of these pesky hidden wedding costs that you think are already included. If you really want your wallet to thank you, see the inside scoop we've compiled below, detailing all the hidden costs you'd never even think to allow for in the run-up to your wedding day.

1. If you are getting married in a church, remember, that you will have to pay extra for an organist, a bell ringer or a choir.
2. An off-site civil ceremony will cost more than a ceremony at a registry office.
3. Wedding dress prices often don't include any potential alterations (and the bride usually needs approximately three fittings!)
4. Don't forget any delivery costs. Some florists, cake makers, etc. will charge a fee when delivering from a certain distance.
5. Check if envelopes are included in the price of your stationery (can you believe that sometimes they aren't?!)
6. Consider stamps! Depending on the weight of your invitations and on how far they will have to travel, stamps can add up!
7. It is a good idea to think about some food for when you and your bridesmaids/groomsmen are getting ready, even if just a platter of sandwiches you could make up the day before. Alcohol and hunger do not go well together.
8. If you want to relocate your flowers from the ceremony venue to the reception venue, your florist may charge you a fee for the extra work.
9. If you are filming your wedding, some musicians may charge a fee for their performance to be filmed – so ask in advance.
10. Make sure your venue (or caterer) includes the service charge in the bill. It can be an unpleasant surprise to have another 12.5% added to your bill at the last minute.

11. Provide nourishment for your wedding team: photographer, videographer, entertainer, band or DJ. They won't be expecting the same meal as your guests necessarily but check their contracts, as some do stipulate hot meals.
12. Definitely don't forget about corkage fees. Even if you found alcohol on a massive bargain, it may not make a difference when you consider how much the venue will charge you for serving it.
13. If you are having a marquee, make sure you take out insurance that will cover any potential damage.
14. How are you getting to the church, to the party and where you are staying after? If you need a car, tractor or horse, factor that in.
15. Don't forget about VAT. Read the small print to avoid any surprises.
16. Budget in any post-wedding spending, for example, dry cleaning the wedding dress, thank you notes, etc. At the root of it all, make sure you note everything down somewhere and make arrangements that are clear to both parties for everything, to avoid any nasty surprises. That way, you're on top of it – so don't worry!

Happy Planning!

CHOOSING THE RIGHT ENTERTAINMENT

Having entertainment at your wedding is essential for so many reasons. There are many types to consider from DJ, Photo Booths, Singers, Bands, Magicians, Fire Eaters, Illusionists, Silhouette Artist, Characaturists...the list goes on.

We have worked with many and can of course recommend for your wedding but firstly you need to decide what you would like and to do that you need to understand why it is so important to have something on your big day. Click here to find out more

You spend so long looking and planning what we would consider 'formalities' which are not so 'essential' like table design, wedding covers, table favours, decoration - whilst these additions do create an atmosphere and a theme to the day, what they do not do is create 'experience'. When people experience something, they have an emotional tie with it and that emotional tie creates memories. Memories are what your guests will have for a very long time, often a lifetime if the memory is powerful enough. You want your guests to not only have the most amazing time at your wedding, but to remember it for all the right reasons.

If you have been to a wedding, think back at what you remember about it. Think about the emotions that memory creates even now. Ask yourself what it was you remember so vividly, there will be key moments like the bride seeing the groom for the first time, the bride being walked down the isle, the first dance, the friends you were with, the love, the laughter, ALL these are emotionally tied and locked with you....I bet for sure you did not remember chair covers at a single wedding? Yet chair covers cost more than most entertainment on your day - fact.

1. BUDGET

You are likely to spend anything from £300 to £1500 on your entertainment, with an average of about £500.

2. WHEN TO ENTERTAIN?

“During what times do I need wedding entertainment?” It is a must once the wedding breakfast is over, so that you and your guests can relax and enjoy the evening - a band or a DJ is perfect. However, you may find you want more entertainment throughout your wedding day, to really give your guests something to talk about and again, create those all important memories to cherish.

A perfect time to provide some amazing entertainment such as a harpist, silhouette artists, caricaturist, magician is straight after the ceremony, when you are busy taking wedding photos. Your guests will be walking amongst each other, enjoying a drink and a canapé or two, and a professional entertainer will be a great conversation starter whilst relieving any natural 'lull's which will happen.

SO WHY A MAGICIAN?

A magical entertainer, like myself Steve Rowe, is an essential part of your big day for many reasons. I WILL BLEND IN WITH YOUR DAY.

I do not need a big entrance, the day is not about me... I WILL KEEP YOUR GUESTS THOROUGHLY ENTERTAINED. My combination of stunning visual magic and a relaxing persona really helps your guests enjoy the day fully and I always have something special up my sleeve for you, the wedding couple. I perform to both Adults and Children, leaving no-one out and everyone feels they have had that special attention they so deserve.

Just take a look at the picture opposite – it is NOT photoshopped, though many think it is, it's purely an 'eye popping' moment captured beautifully. The timing is perfect and that doesn't happen by accident. Whichever package you choose, I will liaise closely with your photographer to ensure we get THE VERY BEST REACTIONS AND MOMENTS TO CAPTURE YOUR DAY.

RECEPTION DRINKS

After your ceremony this is when the photographer will gather yourselves, immediate family and your guests for some official shots. Often in small groups and taking at least an hour, the remaining guests can relax for a drink. It's important to keep the day flowing for everyone, no lull or dull moments. A magician at this time is a great idea and I meander my way around everyone keeping the buzz going.

WEDDING BREAKFAST

What better way to make your guests feel special than a magic performance just for them. I approach each table between courses for an individual show involving everyone and having a lot of fun. This is a great opportunity for some amazing photographs which will really capture the energy of the day. I will often come to the top table at the start and then again for one finale piece of magic after all other tables have seen me.

TURNOVER PERIOD

After the Wedding Breakfast the service team will be working hard to change the room over ready for the evening. Your guests will be mingling in the bar and lounge areas, after the meal everyone is relaxed – my mix and mingle magic style is perfect to keep them entertained.

EVENING GUESTS

Your evening guests arrive and there is always a period before everyone gets dancing – mingling around the bar and lounge rooms. General chat about the day, my style works perfectly to create an exciting buzz ready for the party ahead. The older guests will find areas to sit and chat rather than wanting a full on party, so my presence is very welcome. They will know you thought about every aspect of the day, making them feel special too.

QUESTIONS TO ASK YOUR WEDDING VENUE

1. Which dates are available in our chosen wedding month?

Weekends and Saturdays are the most popular choice for weddings and the dates can be booked up a year in advance!

2. How many guests can this venue accommodate?

Your guest list will hugely depend on the size of your venue, for example if your venue can accommodate 300 people, it won't matter so much if a few of your 200 guests bring a plus one.

3. Would it be possible to have our wedding ceremony at this venue?

Which rooms could we use for this purpose? Having your ceremony and reception at the same location can be a HUGE money-saver, as you can use the same flowers and decorations and you won't need transport!

4. How long do we have the use of the venue for? Is there a set ending time?

Can we extend? Venues located in densely populated areas will often have a curfew and sound limitations, so you will want to know about this ahead of time in order to make contingency plans!

5. Will you be hosting any other weddings at the same time as ours?

If you are planning on having your wedding in a hotel, it is possible that there might be other weddings happening at the same time. While there isn't much you can do about this, it is always better knowing ahead of time!

6. What time would we be able to start setting up for the wedding?

The day before or early in the morning of the same day are the usual options for set-up, but you want to know the exact times so you can communicate these to your other vendors.

7. What are the guidelines for decorations?

Some venues will have limitations on the use of candles and confetti while others, like art galleries or museums might have restrictions on flash photography.

8. Are the tablecloths, chairs, cutlery and glasses provided or do we need to rent our own?

Can we have a look at the available choices? If you choose to get the tablecloths, napkins, etc that are provided by your venue, make sure to get this in writing, in case they decide to change their colour scheme and the final results clash with your wedding colours!

9. Do you have a list of preferred caterers? Can we see sample menus?

Sometimes a venue will have caterers it recommends, other times a venue will have caterers you must use. Either way, ask to see a list of their favourites, it might be helpful hiring someone who has worked at the venue before!

10. Can we bring our own alcohol? If so, what corkage do you charge?

Sometimes the corkage fees can be so much that it is cheaper to buy your venue's drinks than providing your own.

11. Do you have the option of a paid bar?

Would there be a specific amount that would have to be reached before the end of the reception? You may want your guests to pay for their own drinks on your Wedding Day (and why not after all of your generous hospitality?!) If that is the case, make sure you ask the venue whether or not there is a minimum spend. This will save you from unexpected costs at the end of the day!

12. Can this venue accommodate a band or DJ, including all of their equipment?

Are there enough electrical outputs for the music and the lighting? An important enquiry to make if you are planning on having dancing after the wedding breakfast. You certainly don't want to have booked and paid for a DJ and find out the venue will not accommodate him!

13. Do you have any special facilities for children?

If there is an extra room available for the kids, we definitely advise you to use it!

Nothing entertains children more than having a few games or even a Disney movie on in the background, leaving the adults to enjoy the speeches and the dancing.

14. Do you have disabled access?

If anyone from your guest list is disabled it will be important to ask your venue whether there is access and toilets for them to use.

15. When do we need to pay our holding deposit?

Are there any other fees we should know about? (Corkage, taxes, service charge) Paying your deposit is important as it is often what secures your venue for the wedding date agreed. Make sure you enquire with your venue when this is due, to avoid any disappointment!

16. Would there be a venue coordinator available on the day?

If there is a venue coordinator available, we strongly advise you enlist their help! They will know how to provide you with a completely stress-free experience and that everything runs smoothly.

17. Is VAT included in the price?

You may have thought you found yourself a bargain and booked your chosen venue immediately. However, your invoice was much higher than expected because VAT was not included in the price you were quoted. To make sure this doesn't happen, simply ask your venue if the price you are being quoted is VAT inclusive!

18. (If an outdoor wedding) What are the possible options in case of inclement weather?

If the venue has rooms that can be used for your ceremony, make sure to see them and imagine how the space could work for you.

19. Are fireworks allowed?

If you have dreamt about having a firework display at your wedding since you were little and your favourite venue on your shortlist doesn't permit them, you are going to have a decision to make! If having fireworks are top of your priority list, then this should be the first thing you ask.

20. How would car-parking work on the day? Will there be enough car parking spaces for all of your guests? Will there be someone to show your guests where to go from the car park?

If you have friends and family living all over the country and know that lots of them will drive to your wedding, it is important they will have somewhere to park their car. Ask your venue car-parking questions to prevent Grandma from having to park her car a few miles from your reception!

21. Does your venue have liability insurance?

Of course you want your Wedding Day to run as smoothly as possible, but accidents happen! Make sure you ask your venue whether or not they cover any (unlikely) accidents that may occur on the day!
